The Association for Supply Chain Management Announces 2024 Board of Directors

CHICAGO - January 8, 2024 -- The Association for Supply Chain Management (ASCM) today announced its 2024 Board of Directors. Featuring three newly appointed members and eight incumbents, this esteemed group will spearhead ASCM's mission to build resilient, sustainable and inclusive supply chains for a better world.

As supply chain disruptions continue to ripple across the globe, impacting individuals and businesses alike, the need for innovative solutions has never been greater. The 2024 Board recognizes this urgent reality and is committed to tackling critical challenges such as boosting sustainability and resilience, addressing data and cybersecurity and championing diversity and inclusion.

"We are confident that under the leadership of Pamela Dow, our newly appointed Chair of the Board, ASCM will navigate these complex challenges and emerge stronger than ever," said ASCM CEO Abe Eshkenazi, CSCP, CPA, CAE. "Pamela brings a wealth of experience and visionary leadership to this role, and we are excited to see her contributions as the third woman to lead ASCM's Board."

Eshkenazi further underscored the importance of the entire board's collective expertise: "The diverse and accomplished members of the 2024 Board represent the pinnacle of supply chain dedication. Their unique perspectives and unwavering commitment will be invaluable as we strive to deliver exceptional value to our members and shape the future of the industry."
